Leave Our Names Alone

Now comes word that the U. S. Geographic Board is erasing from the map certain names which it deems unmodified or freakish.

It seems to us that here is one government activity that could well be held down. We would hate to see the name-changers invade Morgan county—we have some distinctive names for places and neighborhoods that have persisted for generations.

What would the government name-changers do to Buckhorn neighborhood? That is a question, although that particular section of the county is not thus designated on the map.

How would Cracker's Bend fare at the hands of the name-fixers? What about Greasy Prairie, as good a part of the country and as good a name as anyone could ask?

We have heard a certain section of the county referred to as Seed Tick. What the government name-changers would do to that description title would be a shame.

They would probably go to work on Possum Trot, Buzzard's Roost and Frog Pond neighborhoods with a vengeance, winding up down in Muddy, where, at certain times of the year, they might decide that the name is appropriate and doesn't need changing.

One of the nicest things about this country has always been the interesting and original names that stud the map. At any time, you can spend hours over the atlas map of the country with great pleasure at the mere reading of the names. There is originality there, and power, and evidence of the humor that makes America what it is.

But now we find a government board changing Dishwater Pond to Mirror Lake. Shades of Shakespeare! Here's a rose that by another name loses its scent entirely.

Mirror Lake! We don't know the lake in question, but we'll wager there was a good reason why it was called Dishwater Pond, and that Mirror Lake is gross flattery.

Leave our names alone, Uncle Sam. We are satisfied with them.

We like our descriptive titles. The map is alright. If there is any new naming to do alright. But the things that have been named, please lay off!

Civic Pride vs. Floods

Breathes there a man with soul so dead that he has no civic pride? Apparently not, even the most obscure towns.

An amusing incident last week seems to illustrate this truth. In one of the flood endangered towns on the Mississippi river, so much water had seeped through levee openings that several acres of the town were flooded to a depth of two or three feet.

According to a newspaper reporter, however, local residents were busy trying to convince visitors that this water came from melting snow and drippings from the boots of levee workers.

If humorists are correct, certain west coast residents boast of bathing in golden sunshine even of the foggiest of days; and a Floridian wouldn't mention to any outsider the word "hurricane," even if one had just picked him up and blown him a hundred yards.

They say that love is blind. Civic pride must be similarly affected.

There All the Time

Now that the flood situation at Cairo is more encouraging, the women and children are coming out of hiding.

The rest of the world thought that the southern Illinois town had practically been evacuated. Hundreds of women and children did leave their homes and go to places of safety at a distance while the men remained to guard the threatened sea wall. But it has developed that Cairo had a remaining population of 1,500 women and children about which very little was said.

The women and children began to appear on the streets at the minute the crisis was regarded as past. They had been secluded in homes, taking chances that the sea wall would hold, and that the combined forces of the Ohio and Mississippi would not come pouring over the top of the bulkhead.

Had the flood broken through the sea wall and inundated the town, these women and children would have faced grave danger. Officials would have been criticized and condemned if lives had been lost. Cairo had plenty of warning. Why didn't all the women and children get out?

The reason seems to lie in human faith in the safety of homes. Many families would choose to face danger in their own homes, rather than in strange surroundings.

When the threat of flood approached, women gathered their children around them and awaited the worst. They refused to leave their homes, even in the face of warnings.

Home affords protection against many dangers, but with floods, it is different. If the situation at Cairo has been as alarming as pictured, all women and children should have been moved to safety. Officials were gambling with human lives in permitting women and children to remain in the threatened area.

For The Merit System

The National League of Women Voters is now launching the third year of its campaign to stamp out the evils of the spoils system in politics. It is carried on against many discouragements and with final success sometimes vanishing before their eyes as they advance.

A special conference will be held at Chicago the third week of this month, during which opinions will be heard from some of the most eminent political figures of the country.

The Illinois division of this organization is one of the most active in the country. In its long fight for establishment of the merit system in public service appointments, League leaders have found great encouragement in the "constructive advance" made by the recent recommendations of the President for the civil service.

The Chicago conference aims to focus special attention on the personnel administrative features of the proposed federal program. It will emphasize also the great need for civil service reforms in state and local governments. While only nine states have any kind of a civil service act, there are bills pending in 12 other states for which Leagues of Women Voters are conducting vigorous campaigns.

"Just An Old Shack"

The fire department at Staunton, Ill., responded to an alarm the other morning. There was lots of smoke; the building was burned to the ground, owing to a head start.

People didn't take the fire seriously. "Just an old shack," they said. But a group of wide-eyed boys gathered around the smoldering ruins didn't consider the fire a joke. It was tragedy to them.

The building just destroyed was their club house. It wasn't an imposing structure—there probably was not a new piece of lumber in the whole framework. But it was their "shack"; they had made it with their own hands.

While grown persons were inclined to take the loss of the unsightly building lightly, the boys who belonged to the club bemoaned the loss of a meeting place. No doubt their first thought was "how can we rebuild it?"

Stretching back to our youth are fond memories of the hours spent in a "shack," made by boys and occupied by boys.

It was a neighborhood gathering place. On its shelves were cooking utensils representing practically every kitchen and pantry in the locality. Mothers often were puzzled over the disappearance of a sauce-pan or coffee pot.

Building and maintaining that "shack" was serious business among the boys. When it was built, the finest of juvenile workmanship went into the job. Each timber and board that went into its construction had to be "tested." Several youngsters with a sizeable log as a battering ram stood back ready to do the "testing" after the last of the spike nails had been driven.

Knowing the pleasures that an out-of-the-way club house of this kind can furnish a group of boys, we sympathize with the Staunton club in its loss.

Boys, though, are a courageous lot. From the ashes of that ruined "shack," a larger and more pretentious building may arise.

The Checker Tourney

Again, the Jacksonville checker tournament is at an end. A champion has been named, ready to seek laurels with other local players in a contest with all comers in a four-county tournament, to be held in March.

There were no casualties in the city tournament. No broken bones, no twisted ligaments as the players shoved the red and black "men" over the boards; no bugged up noses or split lips. Checkers isn't that kind of a game.

Checkers doesn't rate high with some sport fans who like to see action, excitement, a personal clash of participants. But for genuine concentration, checkers rates a front place.

In the city tournament, we imagine there was more downright hard thinking than in games where the players cavort over a spacious gymnasium floor, or a 40 acre field. Checkers bring direct mental, instead of physical contact. The players try to "outguess" each other. They sit deep in thought, concentrating, plotting, figuring out a way to circumvent the forces of their opponent.

There is nothing slow or dull about checkers if one understands the game and plays it for all it is worth. What game lacks in bodily exercise is made up in mental stimulation.

Diphtheria More Common in Fall; Victims Usually Children of 5 to 7

By DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In the years between 1860 and 1890, virulent epidemics of diphtheria occurred in Boston, New York and Chicago. With the development of diphtheria antitoxin and, more recently, of the Schick test and the use of toxoid for prevention, epidemics of diphtheria on any considerable scale simply do not occur.

Most cases of diphtheria involve children between five and seven years of age. The disease is more common in autumn, being a cold rather than a warm weather disease, in contrast to infantile paralysis, which invariably appears in warm weather but which vanishes when cold weather sets in.

In 1883, promptly after Pasteur established the fact that germs caused disease, investigators isolated the germs that cause diphtheria. When these germs get into the body, particularly into the throat, they grow and multiply. As they grow, they develop a poison which gets into the blood and causes serious symptoms.

Thus, the disease may cause serious damage or even death by bringing about swelling and inflammation in the throat, general poisoning of the human body, or by making it possible for other germs to attack the tissues and cause death.

Diphtheria infection sometimes attacks so insidiously that the disease has gone on for several days before it is noticed that the child is ill. This is especially important, because early diagnosis and treatment may mean the difference between life and death.

The time between exposure to the disease and the appearance of infection in a human being varies from two to seven days, more often being nearer the shorter period.

As with many other infectious diseases, two factors determine whether a child will get the disease: (1) Exposure to a virulent germ which gets into the body in sufficient numbers to produce the infection; (2) The resistance or susceptibility the child may have to the disease.

Diphtheria germs enter the body by way of the mouth and nose, although there are rare instances of diphtheria infections of other tissues and mucous membranes.

The disease usually passes from one person to another, although these are cases in which diphtheria has been transmitted to human beings by milk or by domestic animals, especially dogs, cats and horses.

As has already been mentioned, one of the common factors in the spread of diphtheria is the healthy carrier, the person who has had the disease and recovered and who still carries the germ in his throat.

To determine whether the infection is present, the doctor will take a smear from the patient's throat. That is to say, he passes into the throat some cotton on the end of a stick and collects some infected material on the cotton.

This material he then puts on a preparation in a tube or little box in which the germs will remain alive and grow until they can be studied. It is customary to send this material to a municipal health department, which promptly sends back a report to the doctor telling him whether the condition is diphtheria.

Labor Assembly. This committee advised me that the agreement reached upon Thursday night was canceled and that they could not accept the same. At that time they served notice upon me that I must not only recognize the Union, which I have never objected to doing, but that we should become what is generally known as a "closed shop," which in effect means that I can employ only those persons who are members of the Union and are selected by the "business agent" and other officers of the Union. In other words, I would not have the right to hire whomever I saw fit in my own business. When I am told by an outsider whom I can and whom I cannot hire, I am of the opinion that that is going too far. I am not now ready to turn over a part of the management of this business to one who does not have a financial interest in it.

Arenzville Farmer Tops National Berkshire Show With 2 Record Makers

Charles H. Nickel, Morgan county Berkshire breeder near Arenzville, returned Sunday from the National Berkshire Consignment Sale, held February 6th at Indianapolis, Indiana, where they sold the highest priced sow of the sale, and the highest priced sow of the breed in the past ten years, when their last spring gilt brought $250.00.

This sow, "Raider's Advance Lady 36422," farrowed March 30, 1936, was a daughter of the boar exported to the Argentine a year ago by Messrs. Nickel & Sons, and was out of a daughter of the 1932 National Grand Champion boar, "Epoch Grenadier, 2nd." She sold to Lynwood Farm, Carmel, Ind.

Other sows consigned by this firm commanded high prices. Two yearling sows brought $160 and $150 respectively; while three littermate last March 16th gilts brought $145, $130 and $95 each. Their consignment of six bred sows averaged $155.00. The average entire sale was $112.00. Forty one head were in the offering. The records of animals going out from the Nickel herd was a contributing factor in their record setting prices at this auction. While they showed the 1932 National Grand Champion boar, and the 1930 and 1933 International champion boars; winnings of animals raised on their farm are by no means limited to these. The 1932 National Grand Champion sow of the breed was bred and raised by them. The 1933 National Champion boar also came from their farm. The Grand Champion boar at the last California State Fair was bred by them.

While they have shown many winning barrows at the great International at Chicago, as also winners in the Carcass Class, a boar purchased by the Pennsylvania State College from the Nickels, sired the Carcass champion at that show last fall. While grandsons of the above boar won the Sweepstakes ten head both on foot and in the carcass class over all breeds.

However, Mr. Nickel declares that the high average of the National Berkshire sale last Saturday is evidence of the new interest in the Berkshire breed in general. Nowhere can bred sows be found to supply the demand this winter. At the Pennsylvania State Farm Show and Sale, held two weeks ago, Berkshire bred sows averaged $22.00 per head higher than the next highest breed, and over $20 per head more than the average of the five other breeds sold there. The average for all Berkshire bred sows sales held so far this winter has been slightly over $104.00.

Recordings of Berkshires at the American Berkshire association, of which J. H. Nickel is a director and a past president, is showing tremendous increases. For January, just completed, twice as many were recorded and sold as for that month a year ago, which was also that much above the ten year average for January.

Rev. W. Johnson Will Speak Next Sunday At Grace Church

Prominent Missionary Will Give Address Here; In Work 30 Years

The Rev. William R. Johnson, for thirty years a prominent missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church in China, will be the guest speaker on Feb. 14 in Grace M. E. church. Mr. Johnson is spending a year's furlough in America, expecting to return to China next fall.

Practically all of Mr. Johnson's missionary years have been spent in and around the city of Nanchang in Kiangsi province, central China. This is a busy trading city of almost one million population and one of the nation's wealthiest centers. For years it has been a great center of classic education, and more recently of western education. The Methodist church has had churches, schools, and hospitals in this city and its environs since 1894. Mr. Johnson is missionary-in-charge of religious and educational work among some two million people of this region; and is also director of religious education in the noted Nanchang Academy.

This region of the Kiangsi province is almost periodically flooded by the overflow of the treacherous Yangtze river, and each flood means the death of millions of men, women, and children. For a number of years, Mr. Johnson, in collaboration with agencies of the new Chinese government, has been working to correct the conditions leading to floods and consequent famines. He has led in movements for building dykes, for reforestation of lands, canals. He has also, at the request of Chinese government officials, handled funds raised in America and in Europe for famine relief. For a time he was the executive head of the China Famine Relief committee, with headquarters in New York City, and later its representative in China. Perhaps no man has done more than Mr. Johnson to alleviate famine conditions and to prevent their recurrence in China.

Mr. Johnson is a native of Cornell, Pa., and was educated at Northwestern University, later pursuing graduate studies at Columbia and at Union Theological Seminary. He first went to China in 1906.

Local Firm Starts Trailer Factory in Building at Chapin

Jacksonville Coach & Body Co. Opening Industrial Plant This Week

The Jacksonville Coach & Body Co., is establishing a new industry in Chapin this week. The firm manufactures Gold Top auto trailers, and would have located in this city had it been able to secure an adequate building. It is hoped to move the plant back to Jacksonville within a few months.

Members of the firm are H. B. DeBusk and D. A. Smith. Six people will be employed in the plant, which will have a capacity for building six trailers at once. Mr. DeBusk, in outlining the plan of the enterprise, said Tuesday, "No firm that is building trailers is behind with orders. All that can be built can be sold. "Firms building trailers today are selling all they can build. There is a steady demand, and we hope to have enough orders on hand to keep us busy. One trailer we now have under construction is already sold." The company is building an 18-foot trailer, fully equipped with all conveniences. This trailer carries four beds and complete accommodations for that number of persons. The trailer is wired for either battery or power line current, and on order the company will install an electric generating plant or a "wind charger" for storage batteries.

It is possible to carry on all the functions of a home in this trailer, which is of unusual size. The wheels are equipped with automatic brakes. The outside of the trailer is covered with imitation leather, and the inside paneled in Philippine mahogany, with walnut and birch trim.

Crimsons Romp Over Ashland; Rockets Topple McCooey Quintet

J.H.S. Turns On Heat To Win Over Panthers In Double Bill; Eight Players Notch Points

Ashland—Turning on the heat in the second quarter, Jacksonville high dispelled the aura of fame that has been floating around the heads of the Ashland Panthers here Tuesday night when they whipped up to a 44 to 17 victory. Jacksonville freshman-sophomores defeated the Ashland reserves in a curtain raiser 14 to 10.

Eight Crimson engers tossed in points during the melee. "Skinny" Baptist led the Crimsons with 11 points, the only one of the boys to get into two figures.

The Crimsons asserted themselves in the first period when they rolled up an 8 to 1 score, but it was the second quarter that spelled victory definitely. Then the Crimsons rushed through the Ashland defense to roll out a 24 to 6 lead by the end of the half.

Some of the reserves got into action during the third period, when the Crimsons led 31 to 11 at the close, and the entire second string was in for a large part of the third quarter.

Chapin Files Entry For County Tourney

List 20 Boys from Whom Team Will Be Selected for Grade School Meet

Chapin Grade school became the first to officially enter the Jacksonville Journal and Courier grade school basketball tournament to be held beginning next Tuesday on the David Prince court. Principal W. B. Dehart yesterday entered a list of 20 boys from whom the ten players who will represent the school will be selected.

Entries for the tournament will close at midnight Friday, and pairings and playing time assignments will be published in the Sunday morning, Feb. 14, issue of the Journal and the Monday, Feb. 15, issue of the Courier. Entries have been assured from Waverly, St. Patrick's Parochial school, South Jacksonville grade school and the David Prince junior high school.

Trophies for the tournament have been ordered. They will be a 22 1/2 inch tall figure of a basketball player, mounted on an ebony base, for the championship team, and a 16 1/2 inch tall figure of a basketball player mounted on a base. Both trophies will be of silver. The consolation champion will be awarded the basketball which will be used during the tournament. It will be a Bailey and Himes ZLB ball.

The names of the players of the Chapin squad who have been entered are Wendell McNeil, John Onken, Paul Nash, George Perib, Jack Hubbard, Carl Gimbel, Martin Nash, Howard McDaniel, Earl Thompson, Warren Goffinet, Russell Rice, Bob Vaniter, Verne Nergan, Allen Six, William Onken, Dicky Johnson, Ray Le Waters, Urban McDaniel, Harry Brookhouse and Dean Watts.

Eddie Brennan and Bob Albrecht, two officials who have been handling the Jacksonville high school preliminary games, have been named as the major officials of the tournament.

Freeman Hopper, who has had considerable experience in athletic events, has been named as head scorekeeper.

FAN BREEZES

By Ernest Savage

SIX teams at least will be in the Journal and Courier's grade school basketball tournament which will pick a county champion. I. S. D., David Prince, St. Patrick's and South Jacksonville have assured entries, and Waverly and Chapin are slated definitely. Murrayville and Franklin haven't been heard from as yet.

FRANKLIN may be without its coach for the rest of the week. Coach L. E. Leighton went to St. Louis Monday to take an examination in an effort to find out what is causing the nervous disorders which put him on his back about a week ago. Principal Viar is handling the athletic affairs at Franklin for the time being.

BOWLERS are still wondering how they came out over in Quincy last Sunday. There were about 200 Jacksonville people over in the Gem City for the Tri-Valley tournament, 15 teams competing from here. Something seems to have gone wrong with several attempts to obtain the scores made by the local legiers.

HERE'S a list of the champions and runners-up crowned in tournaments last week end. Mason, Easton and Havana; Sengamon, Auburn and Pleasant Plains; Montgomery, Hillsboro and Nokomis; Christian, Taylorville and Morrisville; Greene, White Hall and Roodhouse; Macoupin, Gillespie and Virden. Can they repeat in the districts and regionals?

FRANKLIN Burghardt, colored Greenfield player who went to Eureka and became a co-captain of the football team there, and who then went to West Virginia where he was an assistant coach, had his cheek bone cracked in three places in the accident in which Ozzie Simmons, Iowa football star, was injured seriously a little over a week ago.

Burghardt, who was studying for his master's degree at the University of Iowa this winter, was playing basketball on the same team with Simmons, who had organized a colored professional team in order to earn some money this winter. The manager of the team was killed in the crash.

ANOTHER record has fallen by the boards in the local bowling leagues. Williamson's Funeral Home team rolled the first 1000 series last Monday night—Their total was 1079.

ASSIGNMENTS to regional tournaments will take Russ Shields from his home in Greenfield over to Quincy every night. He'll also travel over to Farmersville every night for a district tournament. Quincy objected to the officials originally assigned to their regional tournament.

Routt Finds Basketball Legs To Beat Hannibal Team 30-11; McCooey's Third Loss of Year

Routt high began to get its basketball legs for the first time this year last night on the Liberty hall court, and they turned back McCooey high of Hannibal, a team which has lost only two games this season, 30 to 11. The Routt reserves won from the Hannibal reserves in the curtain raiser, 18 to 5.

Their offense breaking pretty and seizing opportunities to score, the Rockets became a threatening aggression from the start of the fray. They didn't waste anytime in getting down to work, and kept plugging away at the hoop steadily.

Bernard Perry was the high point man, working under the hoop to pile up 16 points. McCooey got five field goals from the field, and connected on only one of their six chances from the gift line.

The Rockets soared away in the opening quarter to an 8 to

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as usual, sleep fine and never feel better,"—Mrs. Jas. Miller.

Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out a poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

"In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and acid bacteria. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation."

Wolff Gives Short Concert at College

German Singer Presents Short Review of Schubert's Life; Gives Song History

Ernst Wolff, German baritone, presented a program Tuesday morning for the students of MacMurray College. After giving a short review of the life of Franz Schubert, he told how Schubert came to write "Rose, the Miller's Daughter," one of his greatest compositions. He then played and sang the German lieds, telling between the songs the story of the music and words.

Mr. Wolff was born in Baden Baden, southern Germany. Being unable to study music after finishing high school, he entered business in Frankfurt. There his musical talent was discovered. As a result, he later became headmaster and then conductor of the orchestra at the opera house in Frankfurt. For five years he remained conductor of orchestras.

Once during a dress rehearsal, Mr. Wolff sang a solo part when the soloist failed to appear, and at that time his career as a singer began.

The DOCTOR says:

How to Treat Stomach Ailments

In this day of fast and careless eating, there is an ever-present danger of ptomaine and other alimentary disorders. Minor stomach trouble can frequently be eased and cured by home treatment, if you are thoroughly sure of your procedure and have the necessary medicines.

In general, though, the safest practice is to refer immediately to a good doctor and use his advice. It saves money in the long run, every time. And it's so much safer and surer—a health protection that you can't afford to overlook.

And when the doctor suggests medicine or a prescription—come here for exact and efficient handling.

Red Cross Letter Explains Disaster Relief Arrangement

Chairman Here Receives Description of Flood Aid Set-up Plan

The following letter was received by H. J. Rodgers, chairman of the local Red Cross Chapter, from Wm. M. Baxter, Jr., manager of National Headquarters at St. Louis, Missouri.

"Disaster relief presents two phases. The first is the emergency, when all effort is expended to meet the immediate needs of the sufferers—rescue, food, clothing, temporary shelter and medical attention. The next step leads us to permanent rehabilitation. Every family affected by the disaster and without resources to re-establish itself unaided, will, in so far as possible, be given sufficient help so that supplemented by its own effort, it may again become self-sustaining.

"The assistance which is given by the Red Cross is based on need, not loss. Although a person may have suffered heavily in the disaster, if his financial condition is such that he can stand the loss, without unreasonable hardship, he is not a proper applicant for relief. The relief fund being contributed by the American people is not to assume the place of insurance and to replace losses, but is to meet actual needs, and it will be used only to meet those minimum needs which the sufferers themselves cannot meet from their own resources.

"All help, financial or otherwise, given disaster sufferers is an outright gift from the American people extended through the Red Cross without any obligation.

"The work of rehabilitation requires a careful study with the affected families in order that decisions may be based on a knowledge of the facts and insure the re-establishment of the flood sufferers on a self-sustaining basis consistent with their normal life before the disaster.

"It is particularly important in view of the many statements appearing in the press with reference to the responsibility for rehabilitation that may be assumed by federal, state, and local public agencies that chapter officials understand the distinction between such effort and the service rendered by the Red Cross.

"The efforts of public agencies are directed primarily to general problems of sanitation, the repair of public property, including streets, sewers, lighting and water systems, et cetera. The responsibility assumed by the Red Cross for rehabilitation includes the provision of such services as may be necessary to maintain the health and welfare of the families of the flood sufferers and to assist them in the restoration of their homes. The Red Cross is prepared to meet these needs."

"The work of rehabilitation requires a careful study with the affected families in order that decisions may be based on a knowledge of the facts and insure the re-establishment of the flood sufferers on a self-sustaining basis consistent with their normal life before the disaster.

"It is particularly important in view of the many statements appearing in the press with reference to the responsibility for rehabilitation that may be assumed by federal, state, and local public agencies that chapter officials understand the distinction between such effort and the service rendered by the Red Cross.

"The efforts of public agencies are directed primarily to general problems of sanitation, the repair of public property, including streets, sewers, lighting and water systems, et cetera. The responsibility assumed by the Red Cross for rehabilitation includes the provision of such services as may be necessary to maintain the health and welfare of the families of the flood sufferers and to assist them in the restoration of their homes. The Red Cross is prepared to meet these needs."

Uneven at Close

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Buying forces met resistance in today's stock market and closing prices were notably uneven.

There were a few brisk rallies in both directions, but dealings were comparatively slow during the greater part of the session.

Selected rubbers, motors and specialties were favored from the start, while rail, utilities and other recent leaders were permitted to drift to lower levels.

One exciting period, near the final hour, which had to do with a potential "squeeze" of shorts in Warner Bros. stock, inspired a brief recovery movement which enabled numerous issues to reduce or cancel early declines.

Following upon announcement of the Warner concern it had called off its plan to put out additional common, trading in the stock was temporarily halted because of the "covering" rush which swamped the specialist's books. When transactions were resumed one block of 20,000 shares changed hands at 77 for a gain of 2 points. Although it edged a bit higher, the issue ended at the 17 figure.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 1 of a point at 73. Transfers amounted to 2,590,450 shares compared with 2,987,300 yesterday.

Corn Demand Puts
Backbone in Price

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(P)—Aggressive demand for corn available to be delivered without delay put backbone into corn prices today, and also helped to overcome setbacks of wheat values.

Temporary downturns in Chicago wheat quotations were associated with sharp lower prices at Liverpool, where the market was affected by the unusually large amount of wheat on ocean passage to import countries and by general rains received throughout India in the nick of time to prevent crop failure.

On the other hand, a cold wave over the corn belt, together with simultaneous excellent shipping call here for corn ready to be used at once, and with scantiness of arrivals of corn at all primary centers, inspired sustained buying of corn futures.

Both corn and wheat closed at the day's top level, corn unchanged to 1/2 higher, compared with yesterday's finish, May 110 1/4, July 104 1/4, Sept. 97 1/4, wheat unchanged to 1/2 off, May 134 1/2-135, July 117 1/2, Sept. 113 1/2-114, oats unchanged to 1/2 lower, May 51, and rye unchanged to 1/2 down, May 11 1/2. Provisions results showed 5 to 10 cents decline.

New Survey of Illinois River For Flood Control Planned; Soybean Acreage May Be Boosted; State Farm Institute Dates Fixed; Strawberry Beds Should Be Set Early

With a short time army engineers will undertake a reinvestigation of the Illinois river with a view to adoption of a flood control project, it was announced at Washington Monday.

The reinvestigation will be made in response to a resolution of the rivers and harbors committee of the house of representatives.

According to the committee the section of the river to be included in the survey will extend from the Starved Rock dam near Utica, to the Mississippi river at Grafton.

Included in the study will be a review of previous reports made on this waterway by the army engineers to see if a modification is justified as a result of changed conditions.

The study will attempt to show what areas along the Illinois could be used as reservoirs for protection and improvement of navigation and control of floods.

An estimate of the cost to the federal government for the acquisition of such areas, and the levees and the leveed lands in the various drainage districts between Grafton and the Starved Rock dam near Utica will be included in the investigation.

Although the war department at the present time has an approved project for the Illinois river, which will provide a channel of 9 feet depth in 1939, this project makes little provision for flood control, being designed primarily as an aid to water borne commerce.

Boost Bean Acreage If Good Seed Is Available

Farm reserves of Illinois soybeans on Jan. 1 are five million bushels or 29 percent of the 1936 crop of 17,216,000 bushels, according to a report issued by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture. This reserve is considered heavier than usual.

The proportion of the total soybean acreage this season on which soybeans will be planted for hay purposes is expected to be unusually large in order to partially replace the heavy loss or failure of 1936 acreage sown to red clover. Numerous farmers, especially in the western half of the main commercial area, report that their beans are not fit for seed due to hopper damage or wet harvest conditions in 1936. In fact, there is considerable concern about the seed supply situation in this west central and lower west central area of Illinois which at present seems likely to curtail to some extent the 1937 acreage of soybeans in these counties. The seed situation improves in the eastern half of the commercial soybean area, especially east and north of Decatur, and the present outlook is that the total soybean acreage will be maintained or increased over that of a year ago in that section of the state.

It pays to use high quality disease-free stock for planting, Colby explained. Under usual conditions it is not best to use plants from an old patch for setting out a new planting. Healthy, vigorous, true-to-name stock, grown by specialists is not unduly expensive and usually pays for itself many times over.

Plants are usually set from 12 to 2 feet apart in rows that are from 2 to 4 feet apart. Experiments indicate that both shallow and deep planting are unsatisfactory; the plants do best with the crowns exactly at the ground level after the soil has been packed about the roots. Young plants should not be allowed to fruit the first season.

Strawberry fruits contain nearly 90 per cent water, and because the plant has a comparatively shallow root system, it often suffers from short periods of drought that do not affect larger plants. Watering the plants thoroughly even once or twice during a dry period may prevent considerable loss of fruit and may even be the means of saving both crop and plants.

Expansion Checks
Livestock Gains

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(P)—An expansion in livestock receipts today definitely checked, at least for the time being, the recent upward trend of values. Prices in some branches of the trade turned lower.

Traders said larger receipts coupled with an unsatisfactory situation in the dressed meat trade in some distributing points were factors against a rise in livestock prices.

Hogs closed a shade to 10 cents lower. Top sank to $10.30.

The general cattle market was slow and prices were unchanged to 25 cents off although the losses were only on scattered sales. Best steers maintained the recent price basis. A top of yearlings brought the $14.50.

Voters League Will Sponsor Conference

To Discuss More Efficiency in Government During Two-day Meeting

"The Public Personal Issue—From Opinion-Making to Political Action" is the subject of a special national conference called by the National League of Women Voters for February 24 and 25, in the Palmer House, Chicago. Mrs. Hugh Beggs, local president, has been advised. It is the first of several feature projects planned by the league in its 1937 offensive against the spoils system in public service.

The League, which early in 1934 initiated an opinion-making campaign for the merit system of public appointments, is calling the conference primarily to "further the campaign of opinion-making and to assist those engaged in questions dealing with personnel legislation." Talks by authoritative personnel leaders, a forum dinner and round table discussions of which will be announced later.

Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, chairman of the League's public personnel campaign, will direct the conference. A committee of assistants include Miss Anna Lord Strauss of New York City, Mrs. LaRue Brown of Boston, Mrs. Malcolm McBride of Cleveland, Mrs. Virgil Loeb of St. Louis, Mrs. Jasper S. King and Mrs. William G. Hibbard of Winnetka, Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, is chairman of local arrangements.

"To have aroused the public to the cost and consequences of the spoils system is not enough," Mrs. Gellhorn said in announcing the conference. "We also must face the political and administrative realities of the question. The public must be made aware of its power to solve this most challenging problem of our democracy."

Report to Board Shows Health Situation Good Among School Children

Members of the board of education last night listened to a report by Dr. R. O. Stoops, city superintendent of schools, showing that the general health of students this winter has been good, and that 50 per cent of students in both grade and high schools have been immunized from smallpox. A large number of children have been vaccinated in recent weeks as the result of a warning issued by health and school authorities.

The board adopted a set of resolutions accepting conditionally the new Lafayette grade school building, which is almost ready for occupancy. These resolutions dealt with the general contract, plumbing, heating and other phases of construction. In all instances the work is accepted with a guarantee that any defects of workmanship or material that may develop within a year will be repaired or replaced by the contractor.

Two Teachers Employed

Two teachers were added to the high school and David Prince Junior high school faculties for the last semester to fill vacancies.

Board members voted to pay the expenses of Supt. Stoops when he attends the annual meeting of the superintendents' division of the National Educational Association at New Orleans, La., Feb. 18-27. Dr. Stoops has been a member of the superintendents' division since 1910.

In summing up health conditions among the schools during the last semester, Dr. Stoops stated that they have been generally satisfactory. There have been a few cases of chickenpox but practically no other contagion. There is not a case of smallpox among the local student bodies at the present.

Presence of smallpox in the west section of the county, however, put health and school authorities on guard. General immunization children was urged, Dr. Stoops reporting that there has been excellent cooperation on the part of parents.

Many Pupils Vaccinated

During the last few weeks several hundred school children of all ages have been vaccinated for prevention of smallpox. The superintendent believes that this will have an important bearing on the health of the student bodies for several years to come.

Commenting on attendance during the first semester, Dr. Stoops said that a total of 1318 pupils were enrolled. At the close of the semester the number had dropped to 1214, largely because of removals.

Ninety-five percent of the children in the schools were promoted at the beginning of the second semester.

The superintendent said the figures on transfers and removals show that the city had a considerable transient population, which always furnishes a problem for school authorities.

He discussed with the board members at some length a few chronic cases of boys who "skip" school. Despite repeated visits by the attendance officer and school nurse, conferences with parents and trips into court where complaint was entered, a few boys between ages of 13 and 15 have remained absent from classes nearly half of the first semester.

Dr. Stoops declared that the laws are ample, but that they are difficult to enforce in this respect. He cited the case of one boy who was absent from school 48 out of 102 days of the first semester; another was absent 29 days.

Changes were filed in court in both instances, but the problem has not yet been solved, the superintendent declared. "The boys spend most of their time playing hide and seek with the courts and school authorities," Dr. Stoops said.

Both the superintendent and board members agreed that drastic steps should be taken to enforce attendance laws. In cases where repeated warnings to parents fail to accomplish the desired purpose, the board of education will not hesitate to file legal procedure.

The superintendent reported that 52 beginners entered the primary classes of the public school system at the start of the second semester. The number should have been larger, he said, but many parents prefer to start their six-year olds in school at the fall term.

Pointing out that children who become six years old prior to March 1 are eligible to enroll for the second semester, Dr. Stoops said such action would relieve congestion in the fall and furnish equally as good results from the pupils' and parents' standpoint.

Debate Tournament

The board heard a communication from Bruno C. Jacob, secretary of the National High School Forensic league, which will hold the national debate tournament here in May. The secretary said he is counting on the board for assistance in staging the huge affair. The board last night, as previously indicated, it will cooperate in every way to make the tournament a success.

S. M. Foley, chairman of the building and grounds committee, then read a number of prepared resolutions relating to completion and acceptance of the Lafayette building. The new building has been inspected by the architects, Smith, Cratz & Strong of Urbana, and the resolutions were drawn on their recommendation.

The work of Smith & Carson, general contractors, the Carson, Payne Company of Danville, plumbing and sewer contractors, and the D. F. Edwards Heating company, was given a conditional O.K., subject to final action by P.W.A. officials.

Reporting for the education committee, Member Oxley said that Miss Laurine Pierson of Edwardsville has been engaged to teach typing and shorthand in the high school, and that Willard J. Cochran of Macomb has been added to the junior high faculty as teacher of geography and English. Both teachers have been serving as substitutes. Their employment for the second semester was approved by the board.

Hayden Walker, of the purchases and supplies committee brought up the matter of purchase of new typewriters for the high school, this matter being deferred until a future meeting.

Pay on School Bonds
The report of Ray Gruney of the finance committee showed that slightly more than $14,000 is in the school district treasury. The board approved a payment on the Washington school bonds which is due March 1.

During the meeting an informal discussion took place regarding the site of the old Jefferson school building at East Douglas avenue and North East street. It was reported that several overtures had been made toward purchase of the property from which the old building was removed.

Disposition of this property would have to be authorized by a vote of the people. The board took no action, but several members expressed belief that the property should be sold and the funds applied to good use.

CLASS TO MEET

The Gold Circle of the Loyal Women's Sunday school class of Central Christian church will meet with Mrs. Louis Biggs Thursday afternoon instead of Friday. Both circles are invited.

Meredosia Votes Approval of New School Building

Two Issues Which Make Possible Construction Voted Upon Tuesday

Meredosia, Feb. 9.—Voters of the high school district voted today in favor of two issues which will make possible construction of a new building. Permission to sell bonds to the amount of $40,000, if necessary, carried by 249-112. On the question to build the school, the favorable vote was 264-114.

Need for new classroom accommodations was recently made imperative by the request of the grade school board for room in its building now partially occupied by the high school.

Plans for the proposed building have been prepared by Raymond Johnson, Jacksonville architect, and have been tentatively approved by the board. They call for the construction of a building, all on one floor, consisting of six class rooms and a gymnasium.

Paced with the possible discontinuance of the high school or loss of accredited standing, the favorable vote will forestall the necessity of transporting students to other school districts.

The grade school board had previously rejected a proposition to erect an addition to their building to provide facilities for the high school.

A PWA grant has been asked in the amount of $25,000. Receipt of the full amount will reduce the number of bonds necessary, cutting the tax cost to the school district.

It has been estimated that the cost of the new building will not be more than $3,500 for any year of the 20 years necessary to pay off the amount.

The firm of Vaught, Foreman and Cleary is handling legal details.

Barclay Acheson Addresses AAUW Meeting Tuesday

Associate Editor of Reader's Digest Discusses Moral Standard in Talk

Many members and guests gathered Tuesday afternoon at the David Smith House at 3:30 o'clock to hear Dr. Barclay Acheson, associate editor of the Reader's Digest, who was the speaker for the February meeting of the Jacksonville branch of the American Association of University Women.

Taking as his subject "What Makes the Clock Tick," Dr. Acheson sounded an optimistic note in discussing the progress of moral standards and the progress of social justice in this country. After briefly sketching the tremendous advance made in scientific and mechanical knowledge during the last century, Dr. Acheson pointed out that although social justice has lagged behind, yet, nevertheless it too has made remarkable strides from the early part of the nineteenth century when a man could be imprisoned for years for a debt not exceeding one dollar and a half.

His illustration to develop his point concerned itself with the change in the attitude toward children. A hundred years ago the treatment accorded foundlings and orphans seems today appalling and even children in homes had no legal protection against cruel treatment by their parents. Research has found that in the early days in this country in a certain state the only legal protection afforded children against cruelty was under an act for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Following a test case in this matter came the idea for the formation of a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Safeguarding the rights of children has progressed a long way from the days of Alexander Hamilton who thanked God that the machinery of his day was so simple that children could be put to work at it, to the modern time when humanitarian leaders in the country are making the effort to abolish child labor entirely.

Dr. Acheson showed that the thrust forward toward better social conditions always followed the spear points of a humanitarian minority. With a wealth of apt and interesting illustration he made it clear that progress in social justice was usually initiated by small group or sometimes even by one inspired individual who had a definite idea and a firm determination to better a particular condition in a certain community. If the idea succeeded in that community it usually flowed out to other parts of the world, and thus slowly the moral and human standings were raised.

Human civilization is now at the crossroads, so many thinkers today believe. Dr. Acheson believes that its course toward better and more humane social conditions cannot be chartered or guided by a plan superimposed from above, but must be worked out in the democratic way by the efforts of informed minorities capable of making practicable in a community an ideal in some particular field or line of conduct. This is the way that progress has been and will be achieved.

At the close of the formal talk Dr. Acheson answered a number of questions about the Reader's Digest and talked very informally and interestingly about how the magazine is produced and told the story of its origin as the germ of an idea in the originator's mind.

Preceding the address there was an attractive tea served in the dining room where members and guests enjoyed a social half-hour. At either end of the well-appointed tea table sat Mrs. R. O. Stoops and Mrs. W. F. Coolidge.

A brief business session the branch endorsed the proposed national legislative program to be adopted by the National Association at its convention in Savannah, Georgia, March 15-18.

The social committee for the afternoon were Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. C. C. Barlow, Mrs. Ross Bradley, Mrs. W. F. Coolidge, Mrs. P. R. Engberg, Mrs. F. B. Outby, Miss Rose Ransom, Mrs. R. O. Stoops, Miss Zoe Tyrrell, Miss Marian Landrum, Mrs. George Webster, and Mrs. E. B. Miller, chairman.

Those opposing this issue believe that it would be inadvisable, in forming another district, when the obvious movement toward centralization is apparent throughout the state. Also the added expense for more road equipment and the dividing of the annual tax income in the district are points being considered by those opposing the action.

According to reports, the amount of taxes received from the bottom lands in the district is approximately $1000.00 annually while the hill lands pay in the neighborhood of $700.00 annually in taxes.

A court hearing will be given the issue on February 19th, and according to law no appeal can be made on the case.
